Amsterdam

Amsterdam, the capital of the Netherlands, is one of the most popular destinations in Europe and the entire world. This wonderful city has a charm that you don't find everywhere - bridges over canals, cute houses, parks full of families, cyclists pedaling with pleasure, worthwhile museums and of course, coffee shops. And she manages to combine, in an almost harmonious way, a relaxed and fun vibe with a lively vibe and a young atmosphere.

Perhaps the most surprising thing about Amsterdam is that, although it offers so many experiences and places to visit, it is a fairly small city - both in terms of area and population - only 800,000 people live there. For tourists, it's great. It's easy to walk from place to place and if you run out of energy, you can get there in minutes using the excellent public transportation. By the way, the transportation is so efficient that if you want to jump to nearby Rotterdam and The Hague or even to the beach in Haarlem, you can do it easily and quickly.

The city center is the beating heart of Amsterdam and there the main attractions await you - the Royal Palace, Dam Square, the Rijksmuseum and the Anne Frank House. That doesn't mean other neighborhoods aren't worth a visit. The Jordaan quarter, which was once a neglected area, is today one of the coolest locations in the city, with an interesting food scene, art and worthwhile shops. De Pijp was also once a gray neighborhood and today it is a lively area that every trip to the city must include brunch there.

When you think of Amsterdam, it's hard not to immediately think of the city's coffee shop culture. Indeed, it is a great location for those interested in experimenting with high-quality and precise materials. But it is recommended to go to these places only at the end of the day, so that you can be at your best when you view the top of European art that is displayed in the Rijksmuseum, the Van Gogh Museum and the Stedelijk Museum. A visit to the city is also a great opportunity to visit the Anne Frank House and the Museum of Jewish History.

You should leave some time for the urban dining and shopping experience. Try the Podalen food market, the Albert Kuip market, the flea market and the abundance of restaurants, cafes and designer shops scattered in the various neighborhoods. Don't worry, there are also plenty of well-known chains and brands.

Sites in Amsterdam

8 things not to be missed

1 Rijksmuseum

There is no shortage of good museums in the city, but this is the best of them. In this Gothic building many of the most important works of the most famous Dutch artists are displayed. Hours of fun guaranteed.

2 Van Gogh Museum

A museum dedicated entirely to one of Holland's great painters and a fascinating and tragic figure. Many of the post-impressionist painter's masterpieces are displayed here.

3 Anne Frank House Museum

The story of the Frank family is well known, but when you visit the building where the girl hid from the Nazis and see the reconstructed hiding rooms - things take on a more tangible meaning.

4 Podahlan

A food complex that combines what is cool and delicious in Amsterdam. It has 30

7 attractions for families

1 Canal cruise

The best way to see this charming city is without pedaling, making it an ideal activity with small children.

2 Blijburg aan Zee

If the weather is nice, this beach on the artificial island of Iburg is a great place to go to swim, sunbathe or just enjoy a fun atmosphere or a coffee in front of the water.

3 Hortus Botanicus

A botanical garden, one of the oldest in the world, on its territory there are 6,000 varieties of trees, plants and flowers that came from different parts of the world.

4 Artis Zoo

The Amsterdam Zoo is located along the canal and is beautiful and diverse. It has wild animals from different continents, a large aquarium and also a bacteria museum.
